while it may seem tyrosine would be more appropriate, imho, phenylalanine is many times more useful bcaas, creatine, whey protein and carbs all in one affordable great tasting place would recommend patients usually have heard that the level should double in two days, but recent literature says that there are plenty of healthy pregnancies that do not increase at that rate the scarcity of healthcare workers trained in caring for patients with hiv is still a rate-limiting factor to success